Special to The Star

KENTON O Aug 1—A fire that for three hours this morning threatened to destroy the business district on the south side of the square here was apparently under control at noon after causing a loss expected to total more than $100 000

Thirty six firemen with equipment from Lima Marion Bellefontaine Forest and Kenton battled the blaze that destroyed the old Dixon opera house and four adjoining business places

No definite origin of the blaze had been established at noon It was generally believed that sparks from smouldering rubbish to the side and rear of the opera house lodged under the stage where the fire started

Business Rooms Crushed

A three story fire wall on the west side of the building collapsed at 11 30 a m crushing two business rooms west of the opera house The other three walls had collapsed earlier in the morning

Although several hundred lives were endangered by the falling bricks no one was injured Two persons were overcome by smoke and heat Harry Furlong of Lansing Mich an employe of the Colonial restaurant west of the destroyed block was overcome by smoke while carrying restaurant equipment into the street He was revived in five minutes Frank Bane 60 of Kenton a spectator was treated for cuts about the head after he had fallen when overcome by heat

The fire was discovered by an unknown person who telephoned the fire department The flames spread rapidly and soon were beyond control of the local firemen A half hour after the alarm was sounded an appeal for help went to surrounding towns For more than an hour the blaze threatened to sweep the entire south business section and firemen fought small blazes breaking out on the roofs of near buildings

Business places and offices destroyed in the opera house block were the Briggs clothing store the Apostle poolroom and restaurant the Hardin county Ingalls for Governor headquarters and the offices of the National Leafy Oak Coon Hound Field Trials

Considered one of the show places of the region when it was constructed in 1853 by Henry Dixon the opera house has not been in use for the last three years During the World war it was converted into a motion picture theater and was operated as such until recent years The opera house block was owned by the Dixon estate

MURDER AND SUICIDE SEEN BY OFFICIALS

Body of Mrs Mary Hinkle, 71, Removed from Charred Ruins of House

ALL BUILDINGS BURNED

Jacob Hinkle, 50, Found Near Scene, Dead as Result of Gun Wound.

A Marion county woman and her son died last night in a tragedy that authorities believe included murder the firing of all the farm home buildings and then suicide

The victims of the tragedy are Mrs Mary M Hinkle 71, and her son Jacob Hinkle 50 of the Bayle-Uncumber pike seven miles southwest of Marion A bitter quarrel between Mrs Hinkle and her son is believed to have led to the tragedy

Part of the details of the tragedy are shrouded in a fire which destroyed practically all the farm buildings on the Hinkle farm The fire started shortly before the time Hinkle killed himself authorities said

Body Found in Field

Hinkle died from a shot gun wound self inflicted Coroner Kenneth D Smith said this morning Hinkle s body was found in a cornfield early today 1 000 feet from the smouldering ruins of the farm buildings

Mystery surrounds the cause of the death of Hinkle s mother Coroner Smith after a post mortem examination of her charred body which was removed from the burning house at 1 this morning said that there was circumstantial evidence of external violence No concrete evidence however, had been uncovered by officials today to lend weight to the general supposition that Mrs Hinkle was murdered

Mrs Hinkle s body was found lying on a davenport in the sunporch of her home while it burned last night Several persons saw flames envelop the body and made a futile effort to rescue it All witnesses stated that Mrs Hinkle did not move while the flames surrounded her indicating that she was dead or unconscious

Pistol Found in Pocket

Officials attempted to connect the discovery of an automatic pistol from which several shots had been fired with the death of Mrs Hinkle The pistol was found in the pocket of Hinkle s coat when his body was discovered this morning In the post mortem on Mrs Hinkle s body Coroner Smith stated that the body was so badly charred that it could not be determined whether Mrs Hinkle had been wounded by gunfire

Reports Hearing Shots

Mrs Phillip Nichols and Harold Hanke, both of whom live within half a mile of the Hinkle residence, told Captain Ira Shrock that they heard several shots fired last night at 8. They stated that the sound of the shots came from the vicinity of Hinkle home

A probable background for the suspected murder-suicide theory is a bitter quarrel which has caused hard feelings between Hinkle and his mother for several months. This quarrel, which according to Mason Powelson, 17, of Agosta, who had been working in the Hinkle home, grew so bitter in the last few days that Hinkle threatened his mother with violence and threatened to have her placed in an asylum. She also told Police Captain Ira Shrock that she saw Hinkle put a pistol in his pocket Sunday morning.

Officials also believe that Hinkle set fire to the farm buildings to cover up the probable murder. Seven buildings including the house and barns began blazing almost simultaneously last night. Hinkle s body was lying 300 feet from the ashes of a strawstack

Early reports that Hinkle had been seen driving away from the house after it and the other buildings had caught fire were contradicted when Hinkle s body was found at 7 15 this morning by Patrolman John Underhill, who with Patrolmen Henry B. Tong and Harry Smith were searching the farm

Hinkle discharged the shotgun by placing the butt of it against a fence post and pushing the trigger with a piece of wire he evidently had fashioned for that purpose The charge passed just above his heart. Coroner Smith said that the man had been dead 12 hours when he viewed the body at 8 a m today

Dr Smith expected to return a verdict of the cause of Mrs Hinkle s death this afternoon. The examination of the charred body gave little or no assistance in determining the cause, he said The only remains were the charred torso and a part of the skull The extremities of her body had been burned away

MILLS TAKES SCHOOL POST

New County Superintendent Names F. P. Hinamon Attendance Officer.

The appointment of F. P. Hinamon of the Beaver-Roster road, north of Marion, as attendance officer for the county schools, was the first official act of D. T. Mills when he assumed the position as superintendent of the county schools this morning.

Superintendent Mills, who was elected by the county board of education to succeed C. B. Rayburn, who resigned to accept a position as superintendent of the Mahoning county schools, announced a change in the plan of operating the office of the attendance officer. Instead of the attendance officer, who is paid according to the calls he answers, being subject to the call of the principal of each school, he will in the future be subject to calls only from the office of the superintendent. In the opinion of Superintendent Mills the change will mean a considerable savings to the county school board.

Under the new plan the principal of each school will investigate non-attendance cases. Only when the principal and superintendent have failed to get results through the parents will the attendance officer be called.

Superintendent Mills for several years previous to his appointment as county superintendent served as superintendent of the Agosta schools. He will be succeeded at Agosta by E. L. Hoke of Hayesville.

HITLER FORCES FAIL IN GERMAN ELECTION

Nazis Make Big Gains but Fall Far Short of Majority; Von Papen Wins.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Aug. 1—Adolph Hitler's push for complete power in Germany was stopped today.

The question, following yesterday's elections, was whether the present government under the junker-soldier General Von Schleicher, would continue or whether Hitler could negotiate an alliance with former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening.

Hitler and his Nazi followers doubled their strength in the reichstag over four years ago, but fell far short of achieving the clear majority they sought, receiving little more than one-third of the total vote.

The official apportionment of seats indicated the new reichstag will have 604 members, distributed among the parties as follows:

Nazis, 230; Socialists, 122; Centrists and Bavarian people's party, 97; Communists, 89; Nationalists, 37; Populists, 7; Christian Socialists, 4; Economic party, 2; Agricultural alliance, 2; Farmer's federation, 2; State party, 2; Farmers' party 1.

Hitler is Elated

At Munich, however, Hitler issued a statement to his followers in which he called the election "our greatest success" and pledged them to "carry on the fight with unabated vigor."

Besides the Rightist parties' failure to get a majority, the greatest surprise was the rise of the Communists, who increased their strength from 77 seats to 89.

This was taken as evidence that the radicalization of Germany was continuing and the crushing of the moderate parties of the right was accepted as indicating that the middle of the road course no longer appeals to the German voter.

In a vote which was split nearly equally three ways, the Communists ran a close second in greater Berlin.

The day itself was peaceful, after bloody riots which preceded it for a month, costing the lives of about 125 people.

The possibility of an alliance between Hitler's Nazis and the Centrist party of former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening was widely discussed today as an alternative to the continuation of the present government under General Von Schleicher and Chancellor Franz Von Papen.

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, Aug. 1—Bombs burst and guns blazed early today on the heels of yesterday's elections and at least four persons prominently connected with the Communist and Socialist parties were wounded by bullets.

Bombs were exploded in the Socialist headquarters, the Otto Braun Haus and the building of the newspaper Hartungsche Zeitung.

A number of windows in a big chain store building were smashed by rocks and a firearms shop was looted.

A Socialist boathouse at Brunswick, which was used as a gathering place for Communists, also was bombed.

BERLIN, Aug. 1—Newspaper comment today on the result of yesterday's election showed the moderates and leftists jubilant over the fact that the right parties failed to win a majority of the reichstag seats.

All agreed the Hitler movement had reached its peak.

JOINS RATE FIGHT

Akron Aligns With Cleveland in Gas Schedule Contest.

By International News Service

AKRON, O., Aug. 1—This city has joined forces with Cleveland to form a united front in the fight with the East Ohio Gas company for lower rates.

Limiting the expense to $14,500, city council has adopted an emergency measure to participate in Cleveland's gas rate survey which is being compiled for presentation at a hearing before the Ohio Public Utilities commission this fall.

Akron is the only one of more than 30 communities in northern Ohio which are served by East Ohio to accept Cleveland's offer to take advantage of the data being prepared by a corps of experts, in return for moral support in the fight before the utilities commission.

It was the idea of W. G. Kerr, law director of Cleveland, to sell other cities served by East Ohio the comprehensive data Cleveland is preparing in her fight for lower rates. In return, the purchasing communities were to aid Cleveland financially in preparing the material and lend moral support to Cleveland's application.

Law directors of the communities affected by the offer were called in meet with Kerr but little interest was displayed in his plan.

Large Congregation Hears Hucke in Union Sermon

One of the largest congregations present for the union services this summer, heard Rev. Robert W. Hucke of the First Reformed church when he spoke last night at Epworth M. E. church. The church auditorium was well filled, and the Sunday school rooms were opened to accommodate the attendance.

Rev. Hucke spoke on "True Religion," from the text, "He hath showed thee O man what is good and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God."

Rev. James O. Dodd of Central Christian church offered the opening prayer and Rev. Carl V. Stoop, pastor of the First United Brethren church led the scripture reading. Dr. C. E. Turley, pastor of Epworth church, pronounced the benediction.

Rev. Hucke said in part:

"Religion is a belief binding the spiritual nature of man to a supernatural being, involving a feeling of dependence and responsibility together with the feelings and practices that naturally flow forth from such a belief. Defined so, man has never been incurably religious. In the history of mankind there has never been a tribe without some form of religion. Even the bushman of central Australia and the Indians of Patagonia, who represent the lowest form of existent human life, cherish some belief in the spirit world and engage in some kind of worship.

"In the oldest monuments of civilized man as shown in the pyramids of Egypt and the early Vedic scriptures of India, religious convictions and aspirations are in evidence." He then showed how the various countries have their religions as Hinduism with its graded social structure, Jainism with its asceticism, Buddhism, with its peaceful ethical self culture, Confutanciam, and Taoism and Zoroastrianism. Rev. Hucke continued by saying that, "real Christianity is vital today, but not the many political projects that have become some people's religion. We need the sturdy faith of the Hebrews in the Wilderness. An absolute faith and trust in God. Politicians and economists give various answers to our troubles today. They attribute it to war, speculation, overproduction, Communism, prohibition, tariffs, governmental waste. But all these causes are the effect of one major cause we have refused to take Jesus' gospel of the kingdom of God seriously. We have endeavored to build a civilization on principles that deny and defy the institution. That ungodly civilization has collased and we are crushed beneath its ruins. "Sinners today think more of the bitterness of sin than its bondage. They want relief from its painful consequences, but they long for its soft pleasures. That is why our great social fabric is ripping in shreds. We must realize that Jesus not only saves men from hell merely, but he saves men from sin, not only from the penalty but from the power of sin. This is what we need today. Do we want a return of "the good old times," or a republication of the pagan principles that created its disintegrating fabric. Do we really want to rebuild our world on the rotten foundations, assuming that it is even possible to do that or do we want to build it anew on the foundation that god has laid.

"The new life, the reconstruction and solution of all our problems is possible in true religion. If man would only be serious with himself and take Jesus seriously—if man would only do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with God. This is possible, even the kindom of God on earth but it means the transformation of the inner man by the spirit of God, who ever claims obedient service."

man, came through his second test in 10.5 seconds.

Metcalfe and Simpson, neither of whom was extended in sweeping through a brace of victories apiece, were clocked in 10.7 seconds in their second races.

The favorites, as they stacked up among the even dozen of the world's best sprinters surviving the two preliminary rounds, were Tolan, Metcalfe and Jonath, in that order.

Four Champs Crowned

Otherwise the first day's track and field competition was marked by the crowning of four world champions, as follows:

(1) Leo Sexton, United States, who twice shattered the Olympic shotput record with successive marks of 52 feet 1¾ inches and 52 feet 6 3-16 inches.

(2) Janusz Kusocinski, Poland, who broke the Finnish domination of the 10,000 meter race by beating the best of Finnland's youngsters, Vonnari Iso-Hollo, and cracking Paavo Nurmi's Olympic record by negotiating the distance in 30 minutes, 11.4 seconds.

(3) Duncan McNaughton, Canada, who captured the running high jump at 6 feet, 5¾ inches, after a prolonged jump-off duel with his Southern California teammate, Bob Van Osdel, representing the United States.

(4) Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, United States, whose world record toss of 143 feet, 4 inches, on her first try with the javalin, marked the debut of this extraordinary girl athlete in Olympic competition. It also enabled her to beat the German, E. Braumuller, who had held the previous women's mark of 132 feet ¾ inches, who lost yesterday despite a toss of 142 feet 8⅝ inches.

First Dispute Arises

The first big dispute Olympic officials were called on to settle arose from the first trial in the 800 meters run. The French protested on the ground Paul Keller was fouled on the turn by Phil Edwards, Canadian Negro.

Leading Keller in a chase after Eddie Genung of the United States, who won the heat, Edwards crossed Keller, forcing the Frenchman to pull up. Keller lost so much ground that he dropped out. The council of the I. A. A. F. disallowed the protest and certified Edwards who finished second.

In the qualifying battle in three events to be completed today and tomorrow—the 400-meter hurdles, 100-meter dash and 800 meter run—the Americans placed eight men, Canada five, and Great Britain and Germany three each.

APPELLATE COURT ORDERS NEW TRIAL

BUCYRUS, Aug. 1—Holding that there was error in the judge's charge to the jury and that the court erred in overruling a motion for a new trial, the court of appeals at Lima today reversed the decision of the local court in the contested will case involving the Wickham estate valued at $50,000. A new trial was ordered.

The suit was originally brought by Wade H. Keons against Emma Bergner in an effort to break the will of Mrs. Catherine Wickham. The local court ruled that the will of Mrs. Wickham was not her last will.

MORROW COUNTY

MT. GILEAD, Aug. 1—The C. B. Baird farm of 80 acres, located one mile north of Mt. Gilead, was purchased at sheriff's sale Saturday by the Virginian Joint Stock Land Bank of Louisville, Ky., for $2,660. It was appraised at $3,600. The sale was ordered by the court in a foreclosure action filed by the land bank.

Judge W. P. Vaughan Saturday granted an injunction restraining Lottie Gertrude Stratton and C. P. Stratton from interfering with Mrs. Mary E. Sipe in occupying the 75 acre farm in Harmony township which was the property of her deceased husband, Mrs. Sipe alleged in the request for the injunction that her husband had transferred the farm by deed to his daughter and her husband and that because of fraudulent representations made by them he had failed to reserve a life estate in the farm. They have attempted to take possession of the farm and drive her out, she asserted.

Ruby Dalley, widow of Charles W. Dalley, has filed an answer to the partition suit of Raymond Dalley against Russell Dalley in which she consents to the sale of the property and asks that she be allotted her share of the proceeds as the widow.

The last chapter in the case of William Hart, who was tried for second degree murder here several months ago and found guilty of assault and battery in connection with the death of George Addison, Bloomfield farmer, was written Saturday when Judge W. P. Vaughan allowed attorney fees in the case. Benjamin Olds of Mt. Gilead, who assisted Prosecuting Attorney Fannie M. Myers, was allowed $300 for his services. H. B. Matter of Mt. Gilead and J. S. McDevitt of Mt. Vernon, the attorneys who defended Hart, were allowed $300.

Marion U.S. Navy Officer Retires After 32 Years

Twenty-eight years of sea duty is the record of Lieutenant George O. Farnsworth of San Diego, Calif., formerly of this city, who retired today after 32 years of active service in the United States navy. He recently returned to his home after a four-month leave during which he visited relatives in the south. He plans to make San Diego his home.

Lieutenant Farnsworth enlisted in the navy at New York in 1900 on the old frigate Lancaster, then a training ship. He was assigned to duty aboard the Buffalo which soon after went to Asiatic station just in time for the Boxer rebellion. His four years spent in the east were followed by a session in the Philippine Islands with the Insurrectos and he returned to the United States in the old Spanish flagship, the Isla de Cuba, which had been taken from the Spaniards.

He was discharged in Portsmouth, N. H., with eight months overtime. He reenlisted in Chicago. He took a course at the electrician's school at Brooklyn and helped place the Connecticut in commission. This was followed by more than a year spent with the Big Sixteen on a cruise around the world. The Big Sixteen was the first real battleship force of the United States navy.

Four years on the decks of the South Carolina and participation in the Vera Cruz trouble with Mexico in 1914 while attached to the Arkansas followed in succession before he went aboard the Vestal where he was in charge of fleet electrical repair work.

In 1916 Lieutenant Farnsworth was made warrant electrician and was transferred to the Susquehanna, a German-built passenger ship, carrying troops to France. During the World war he was made ensign and later lieutenant. Following a season of shore duty in Boston Lieutenant Farnsworth was sent aboard the North Dakota and later saw service on the Brazos. Duty aboard the Langley, airplane carrier, on its first trip to the Pacific coast was followed by short duty in Washington, D. C. where he was connected with testing and manufacture of airplane catapults.

A three-year sea cruise on the Saratoga preceded Lieutenant Farnsworth's promotion to full lieutenant in June, 1932, and he was transferred to shore duty at naval air station at San Diego in August 1930. He was later made welfare officer for the station where he is regarded as one of the most popular officers.

Lieutenant Farnsworth is the son of the late Mrs. Emma Keil and spent his boyhood in Marion. He visited relatives here a number of times, the last being in 1928. His sisters are Mrs. J. M. Scribner of 619 East Fairground street and Mrs. Elmer Wintringham of 620 Park street.

another 25 acres if the colonists need it.

The early arrivals started cutting away the trees and brush along a woodland trail for a road and improving a small pond to provide drinking water.

The establishment of a permanent colony of the veterans drew protests from neighboring landowners, one of whom said the bonus army should be stopped "unless they are taxpayers or have visible means of support."

Waterbury is about 10 miles northwest of Annapolis.

News of Camp Cheers Veterans

By The Associated Press

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 1—The flag waves through a blue haze of smelly smoke today, over the busiest scene since the bonus expeditionary force converged on Johnstown.

With assurance from their leader, Walter W. Waters, that a pleasant camp will be established for them in the woodlands near Laurel, Md., the ragged, bronzed veterans hustled through their camp duties with a new lease on life.

Staff officers pointed out the contrast of the crowded encampment today with the dismal spectacle which greeted Waters on his arrival from Washington yesterday.

He stood before them and shouted the news that he had acquired a deed to 25 acres of land, that he can obtain 25 additional acres and is privileged to use 200 if need be.

From the heavy timberland men can build cabins, he said. They can plant gardens, establish dairies raise chickens, rabbits and other livestock and make the new camp self-sustaining.

Waters emphasized that "I do not intend to make another march to Washington. Get that straight. We'll fight our battles at the polls. We'll try to have this great outfit ready for the next election, but if we cannot we'll certainly be on the job for the next one and the next."

Open Quiz of Bonus Riot

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—Two groups of investigators plunged today into a maze of evidence as they sought to find out who was responsible for the tragic rioting by bonus seekers last week in which one veteran was slain.

Pelham D. Glassford, police superintendent, awaited a summons to tell the District of Columbia grand jury what he knew about the affair. A coroner took up the task of surveying the shooting of William Hushka, 37, Chicago, by a policeman.

There also was continued effort to prevent a repetition of the historic mix-up which finally saw regular United States troops called out to restore order. The soldiers were back in their regular billets today, but police had specific orders from the District of Columbia commissioners to keep the capital free of people who had no satisfactory reasons for being in town.

President Hoover asked the grand jury inquiry. Justice Oscar R. Luhring of the District of Columbia supreme court, charging the grand jury with the work, expressed hope that they would find true statements that the rioting was incited by radicals and criminals rather than really patriotic former soldiers.

MOTHER, SON DIE IN DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Authorities See Murder and Suicide; Fire Sweeps All Buildings.

arrive were Jay Jeffers and W E Crum each of whom lived abou one quarter of a mile away They noticed the flames and drove back to the farm to investigate They discovered Mrs. Hinkle's body re clining on the davenport Within a few minutes Owen A Sifritt, city fireman who had seen the fi while driving past arrived He kicked in a window and made an effort to rescue the body but was driven back by the flames and smoke

The crowd looked on helplessly while the buildings were destroyed Not until the buildings were almost in ashes was a fire department called The Prospect department and men with buckets of water concentrated their efforts on the house to make possible the recovery of Mrs Hinkle's body as soon as possible

Police Sheriff C C Fye and deputies began a hunt for Hinkle when the early report that he was seen driving westward had been coupled with the suspicion that Mrs Hinkle had been murdered and that buildings had been fired Authorities in nearby cities were given a description of Hinkle and requested to aid in the search

Quarrel Over Girl

The quarrel between Hinkle and his mother centered around Emma Lyon 17 whom Mrs. Hinkle raised from the age of " and who re cently charged Hinkle with being the father of her child She has been in Sabina O near Washington C H., more than a year

Miss Lyon was taken by Mrs Hinkle from a society for children in Columbus at the age of seven She remained at the Hinkle home attending school in Green Camp until shortly before her child was born in March 1931 Since that time she has been at Sabina

Mrs Hinkle neighbors said wanted Miss Lyon to return to the Hinkle home following the birth of her child but Hinkle who denied that he was the father of the child protested The quarrel over the girl became more intense when a paternity charge was filed against Hinkle by the mother of Miss Lyon Hinkle neighbors said believed that his mother had assisted in making arrangements to prosecute him on the charge

Neighbors and Miss Powelson said that Albert Hinkle another son of the dead woman and assistant state highway director of Indiana had become involved in the quarrel recently when Mrs Hinkle wrote to him and expressed fear that Jacob Hinkle might harm her Albert Hinkle Saturday night talked to his mother by long distance telephone but their conversation is not known

It was also reported that Hinkle might have set fire to all buildings before committing suicide not only to cover up the suspected murder but also to deprive his brother of the property All buildings of any size were destroyed An attempt had been made to set fire to a buggy near one of the buildings

The burned buildings were located on a quarter of an acre in the front of the 70-acre farm The straw stack which also burned was 1 000 feet in the rear of these buildings and Hinkle's body was 500 feet west of the stack The house a wood shed a granary filled with wheat two connecting barns containing the automobiles of Mr Hinkle and her son and a chicken coop were destroyed

Kerosene Tank Found Empty

Officers found an empty 25 gallon tank which Miss Powelson said had been filled with kerosene last Thursday Considerable kerogene was used around the farm and this tankful had been purchased by Mrs Hinkle, Miss Powelson said

Miss Powelson said she had been employed to help Mrs. Hinkle with housework during the last two months She said that Hinkle and his mother quarreled almost continuously and that during the last two weeks Hinkle had refused to speak to his mother except to threaten her She said that Mrs Hinkle was very much attached to Miss Lyon and had taken sides with Miss Lyon when she declared that Hinkle was the father of her child

Miss Powelson left the Hinkle home at 9 a m Sunday to spend the rest of the day at her home in Adas a She said the quarrel had grown more bitter during the last few days but that there had been no unusual developments in their hostility Saturday

When Mrs Hinkle wanted to have some stone hauled on the driveway recently Hinkle refused to consent declaring that there wasn't going to be anybody there to use it Miss Powelson said.

Hinkle was born and spent his boyhood days on the farm on which the tragedy occurred At 19 he ran away from home went west and became a fruit grower and a copper miner He was away 21 years and returned about five years ago when he learned that his father William Hinkle was in failing health He spent a year here during which his father died and then returned to the west. After a year in the West he returned to his home and lived with his mother and Miss Lyon whom Mrs Hinkle had named Emma Hinkle

He became partially crippled while working the copper mines and was a hunchback He leased most of the farm to Mr Crum his neighbor who farmed the land on shares Hinkle raised stock

He was at estes here two weeks ago by Sheriff C C Fye and was turned over to Washington C H authorities to face the paternity charge brought against him by the mother of Miss Lyon He pleaded not guilty to the charge and was released on $300 bond He was to be tried on the charge in October

The loss from the fire was estimated at $3 500

Mrs Hinkle was a life-long resident of Marion county She was born in the county in 1861 on a farm east of Marion to Jacob and Sarah Ann Smith She had lived practically all of her married life on the farm where the tragedy occurred last night

She leaves a son A H Hinkle of Indianapolis Ind a brother Lincoln Smith of Fairground road and a sister Mrs Charles Uncapher of the Rayl Uncapher pike Two brothers four sisters and a son preceded her in death Her husband William Hinkle died about four years ago

Jacob Hinkle was born at the home place on the Rayl Uncapher pike about 70 years ago

Mr Hinkle never married He made his home with his mother except for the time that he was in the west

Funeral arrangements had not been made at noon today pending the arrival of her son from Indianapolis.

Marion Sewage Plant, 10 Years Old, Still Considered Model of Kind

Although it was designed nearly 10 years ago, and has been in operation eight years the Marion sewage disposal plant still retains the distinction of being a model plant attracting engineers from all parts of the world

The latest testimony to this distinction was the recent visit of two Greek engineers Emile C Bojazis and Christos L Horns who visited the Marion plant on a tour to obtain information for practical use when they return to their native county Both are sanitary engineers connected with the government of Greece

The physical part of Marion's plant known as the Imhoff tank trickling filter type is not the only attraction that draws engineers from all parts of the United States and from foreign countries, although all are anxious to see how that type of plant is working under local conditions They spend the most time checking over the complete records of the plants operations. The detailed records and complete analysis of operations of the Marion plant kept by Lloyd G Browne engineer and superintendent cover the eight year history of the plant and provide a technical study interesting to engineers

Tests Made Every Hour

An idea of the thoroughness of the records may be obtained from the information that samples of the sewage treated And untreated are taken every hour of the 24 and that a careful record is kept of the flow noticeable odor and of every detail of plant operation Daily operation sheets are filed and records are kept of costs, analytical work and of special work

The Marion plant is neatly arranged and well kept Its buildings are surrounded with shrubbery and the lawn is given care

Its distinction as a model plant has attracted among others the following engineers from this and other countries B R Garudachar of Mysore India last Dec 7 G P Kankassoulis of Athens Greece and L A Vass, sanitary engineer from Budapest Hungary July 7 1931 Nial Gennau sanitary engineer of Roumania, June 27 1930 R E Coudey sanitary engineer and author of many articles on sanitary work of Los Angeles Calif June 6, 1931, Howard D Schmidt of Nashville engineer in the state department of health of Tennessee May 4 1931 Frank Woodfur Jones of Cleveland superintendent of sewage treatment plants in that city including the new $40 000 000 plant now under construction there J I Mill daily engineer of the Rockefeller foundation of New York September 1928 Sakol Varavni of Bangkok Siam Oct 28, 1928 Others from Saskatchewan Canada Jugoslavia and Italy as well as hundreds from all parts of this country have inspected the plant and spent hours studying its records

Interesting facts about the plant are given out by Superintendent Edd Browne The plant has an average daily flow of approximately 1 400 000 considerable less than its capacity of 4 000 000 gallons a day Labories and plants constitute the bulk of the sewage comparatively little coming from residences Dairies dry cleaning plants ice houses and industries dump huge quantities of sewage matter Sewage is approximately seventh of one per cent solids when it reach the plant and is sensitive study when it is run through a coarse screen to filter out large solids, goes into settling tanks where a sludge is drawn off and where the sewage is partially purified by its own chemical action It is then sprinkled over the sewer beds and allowed to trickle through 10 feet of stone It passes from there into another settling tank and is practically pure water when emptied into the stream

The plant including the 80 acres on which it is located cost a total of $750 000

Children have caught in storm water after heavy rains often wash into the plant in storm water Occasionally some coins are taken from the sewage The plant has received a number of calls to watch for diamond rings and other valuables washed down the sewer but never found any jewels

My Beauty Hint

BY IRENE DUNNE

I BELIEVE the early morning dew and the British fogs are wonderful stimulants and fresheners for the skin.

Since California does not have these morning dews I have compounded a skin freshener very similar in effect to nature's stimulant, and with a spray like a perfume atomizer, I apply this to my neck and face.

The effect is startling. A lovely, vital freshness is awakened in the skin, and a healthy glow and fineness of texture results from the daily use of such a preparation.

"SOCIETY GIRL" CONTINUES AT OHIO

The bill should read, Spencer Tracy in "Society Girl." The picture, showing at the Ohio tonight and Tuesday, depends upon Tracy's short role for entertainment. James Dunn, who hasn't been watching his calories since his rise to stardom, and Peggy Shannon play the roles of a penniless prizefighter out to win a championship and of a wealthy girl, out to amuse herself with the prizefighter because he's a new personality in her humdrum life. Nothing new in the story. She turns him down on the night of the fight and he loses Then in a teary moment she realizes that in spite of social traditions she loves him and she's furnishing the money for his return fight with the champion when the picture ends Tracy's handling of the role of Dunn's manager is redeeming

An organ logue with Jesse Crawford featured, a musical short with the New York University Glee club and a newsreel complete the bill. H R

FIFTEEN HUNDRED believers in the made to order "universal language," Esperanto, now gathered in Paris, come from 34 countries and speak 24 different languages.

During the convention they will speak only Esperanto May they enjoy it

It is no more a language than a rag doll is a real baby You cannot successfully create a new human being or human language except by nature's process In any case, a foreign language is valuable chiefly because of its literature. Esperanto, repulsive to every linguist, has not, and never will have, a literature worth while.

The universal language will appear when human being are ready for it, made up of many other languages, as existing languages are made up of many. English has the best chance of survival, in spite of the Spaniard's proud saying. "Italian is the language of women, French of diplomats, Spanish of heroes and English of horses." English is the language of Shakespeare, and that counts.

OLD RULES STRICT

Columbus Schools of 1845 Guarded Against Teacher-Pupil Romance.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 1—They weren't taking any chances on romance interfering with arithmetic in Ohio in 1845.

"No boy more than 10 years of age is allowed to attend a school taught by a female teacher," read a rule laid down by the Columbus school board of that distant day, recently unearthed here.

And there were others, equally as pointed.

"All vulgar and profane language is strictly forbidden.

"No tobacco in any form is to be used in or about the school room.

"If any scholar is tardy more than 15 minutes, such scholar is to be forthwith sent home for that half day, unless a good excuse is brought from parent or guardian."

Each quarter of school, the rules further set forth, was to consist of 12 weeks. "classes beginning at 8:30 a. m., closing at noon, reconvening at 2 p. m., and closing for the day at 5 p. m.

O. S. U. BOOK VALUE REGISTERS INCREASE

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 1—Book value of the Ohio State university increased last year to $22,081,674-04, according to the annual financial report of Carl E. Steeb, business manager. This was a gain of $781,247.49 over the previous year.

In addition, the university's endowment increased slightly to $1,165,622.04 The increase here was about $12,000 and was accounted for chiefly by a Bequest of $10,000 from the late General Edward Orton, Jr., son of the first president and himself an alumnus and a former member of the faculty.

The university's land and buildings are carried on the state's books at $18,643,349.28, and its equipment at $5,438,325.76.

Saving in Budget by Having Coarse Hair Properly Marceled

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

THOSE of you who have rather coarse hair frequently find that a marcel wave does not remain in your hair as long as in that of your finer-haired friends, and that your marcels sometimes are inclined to be kinky instead of smooth. Yet it is possible to marcel even very coarse hair so that the wave remains the average length of time and lies in smooth, attractive undulations, free of any kinks.

While it probably will cost you more to have your hair properly done, a saving will appear in your budget, for less frequent trips to the beauty shop will be required.

Good Shampooing

Good shampooing is the basis of all good waves, when the operator has average ability, for the condition of the hair before waving has a great deal to do with the results. For coarse hair tar soap shampoos are best. When the hair has been thoroughly shampooed and all soap rinsed from it a final rinse should be used to give additional softness For this add two or three tablespoonfuls of vinegar to a tumbler of water and pour it over the hair.

As the next step, it is important that the hair be dried by hand instead of using artificial heat, to which coarse hair needs to be protected. Drying may be hastened, however, by rubbing the hair with warm towels instead of cold. When the hair is partially dry, a very little light oil should be applied and brushed through it. Brushing should be continued at least 5 minutes, even if the oil is omitted.

Drying by Hand

The wave should be placed in the hair before it is completely dry, and the irons should be warm, not hot, and left in place longer than the usual time. Hot irons tend to make the hair break off

Because the operator will have to go over the hair many more times than she usually does in giving a marcel, and because of the hand drying, this method will cost more, but you will need a new wave less often and in the end you will spend no more but have far more satisfactory results.

Faithful Cheat

BY RUBY M. AYRES

ght 1932, by Ruby M. Ayres

For the next two days she made no plans—she went about everywhere and laughed and skillfully parried the many pertinent questions that were showered upon her although there was an ever growing fear in her heart and then as she was going out to dine with some people on the Thursday night Lomax stopped her in the hall.

"I leave early in the morning so I shall not see you again. Can you give me your new address in case I want to get in touch with you?"

"My new address?" Sondra stammered—so this was indeed the end she had come upon a high wall that shut out the future no miracle was going to happen she was at last thrown entirely on her own resources.

In desperation she gave the address of a friend— I shall be there for the next week or two

Lomax made a careful note of it and then turned away without even a handshake

Sondra followed him to ask one last question

"Flora? Have you heard from her?"

No— for a moment a look of great pain crossed his hard rather ugly face but it was quickly gone

She has made her bed and she can lie on it he said brutally

Sondra laughed

Well it's something to have made it she said flippantly

It was more than she had done and she had no idea where she could go when tomorrow came

When she arrived at the house where she was to dine the first person she saw was John Anderson He crossed the room to her at once

How are you Sondra?

She shrugged her shoulders

Why do people always ask such a silly question? she said with nervous irritation If I were ill or dying I suppose you would have heard it—people always hear unpleasant things quickly enough

Yes he agreed and then after a moment I am sorry about your sister

There isn't any special need to sorrow Sondra said She has been able to do what she wanted and that's more than many of us can say

He looked at her gravely

And is it true that Lomax is going away?" he asked

Quite true he sails tomorrow We had a touching farewell in the hall tonight The house is to be shut up

"And you—where are you going"

She looked up at him with too bright eyes

Do you know—" she said mockingly "I have the kind of feeling that you would like me to say 'to the devil' but it's nothing so romantic I am merely going to a hotel until I can make plans"

Won't that be dull? Surely you must have dozens of friends you could stay with"

Do you think so" she was conscious of a sudden tightening in her throat" Perhaps I would rather be alone"

You are too young to wander about by yourself"

She laughed "Did I say I proposed wandering" I'm afraid there is nothing so exciting in store for me

Why should you be so interested"

Only because I shall probably be out of town for the next few days and I should like to know where you are to be found

How very kind of you

He ignored the sarcasm

Does that mean you have no intention of telling me?" he asked

It doesn't mean anything—perhaps I'll write and tell you only I'm not very good at letter writing— she added deliberately echoing the words he had spoken to her in the park

Anderson changed the conversation

I had news of young Merriman this morning

Sondra turned her face away

Oh did you? How is he?

Unfortunately he has already gone down with a touch of fever It seems amazing—he should have got it so soon a man of his physique

She looked at him swiftly

Fever? Is that anything serious?"

Oh no everyone has it more or less but he's been out there such a short time

There was a little silence I hope he will be all right Sondra murmured

Sure to be you need not worry

I — worry" she laughed nervously What queer things you say

He did not speak for a moment then he said—

Sondra may I ask you something rather personal?

Her heart missed a beat Was it about Mark?—how much did he know or suspect"

Ask me anything you like—she told him carelessly But I don't promise to answer and anyway why not leave it till later? We are sure to be sent in to dinner together she added with a touch of sarcasm

I am afraid not Anderson said I've just been told that I am to escort Miss Symons—

Oh Sondra's lips felt cold Well in that case— she said with an effort "you had better ask me this very personal question now—I shall be leaving soon after dinner

It's about your future Sondra

My future? that sounds terribly dramatic! what possible interest can it be to you?

Only the interest of friendship You must forgive me but I know that as far as money matters—

She cut him short with a quick laugh

Oh but that's where you are utterly mistaken My brother in law has been most amazingly generous—so generous in fact that I intend repaying some of my debts

There was a profound silence then Anderson said quietly—

I am glad Lomax has been generous

He waited a moment then as another man joined them he bowed and left her

It was a miserable evening for Sondra down the long table she could see Anderson very attentive to Nathalie Simons and never once glancing her way

As soon as dinner was over Sondra tried to escape

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Dicky, in a Tender Lover Taking Demands Madge's Promise That She Will Not Join the Night Revue Party.

I PUSHED far back into my mind the query as to the meaning of Lillian's suddenly muted injunction when, as she opened the door, I saw Dicky coming along the corridor toward it I did not need her announcement of his coming I did not even notice whether she had gone to her own room All my consciousness was focused on one thing—Dicky had come back Whether still angry or not I did not know but I was sure that he shared my dread of a bitter parting before his airplane flight.

One thing I knew I must hold myself in readiness for any mood If he were still angry he would not at once proffer the olive branch but at first would make some excuse for his return

Even as I watched him warily he shut the door whirled and rushing to me swept me into his arms "You've been crying he scorned I can see by your eyes Why" Because I acted like the chief porker of the Gadarene swine" I'm not worth crying over sweetheart What did you waste any tears over me for"

Forgiveness

But I was beyond any speech save a murmured Dicky Dicky Dicky as I clung convulsively to him and he fell silent, stroking my hair and holding me close still I too was quiet

You're all in with this devilish mess, he said at last else you'd never go to pieces this way over a performance of mine You certainly have seen enough of 'em and you usually return each pine apple with another one more dead beautiful Where's the secret phobia" Better trot it out

Oh! Can't you see? I choked It wasn't what you said It was because you were going away so angry and you didn't say good bye and you had to fly this morning and—you were so upset and I was so afraid something would happen and I would never—would never—

I could not finish but buried my face against Dicky's shoulder For a long second he did not speak then he laughed softly tenderly while his arms tightened around me

Little idiot he murmured with his lips close to my ear Did you have the slightest notion that I could go away on a flight without kissing you good bye and knowing that everything was all right between us"

"I was mad enough at you when I went out, to take you up in a plane and send us and it to the devil but that mood didn't last beyond the veranda steps, although I tried to make myself think it did I never was so glad to see old Harry in my life as I was when he came ambling along and said he had to see me I nearly fell on his neck and I did a respectable sprint getting up to his room He was quite outwinged But he was such a swell excuse!"

His chuckle was so infectious that I felt all my color slipping away from me Everything was all right with the world again Even the flight was not the fearsome thing it had seemed a few minutes before all After all it was not a particularly dangerous flight he was attempting He would come back to me safely I was sure of it

So I forgive you everything Dicky said next with a touch of his old diablerie "Tell me you forgive me and kiss me quickly for I haven't much time and Harry says old Hugh is waiting for me"

"Hugh" My voice was so strained that I was panic-stricken for fear Dicky should notice it and misunderstand the fear in it.

Yes Hugh What's the matter? Afraid it's going to be coffee and pistols for two"

Dicky Asks a Promise

There was no anger in his voice yet there was a distinct change I knew that I had sounded the wrong note, and struck my mental tuning fork again

One never knows I forced myself to say with a little laugh then I put my arms up around his neck

Oh Dicky! What does anybody or anything in the world matter except that we're not going to part in anger that you're coming back to say good bye to me" Let's not speak or think of anything else

All right sweetheart not for a minute he agreed and held me closely "with tenderly murmured endearments for double that time Then he loosened me and looked down at me with suddenly insistent eyes

But I can't go away without your promise to keep away from that mess tonight he said

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday Aug 2.

THIS day may prove to be a recoil from yesterday with events of a momentous nature continuing It is possible that the adverse action may precipitate either friction in or loss of employment although tact, diplomacy or even strategy may mollify this or bring about favorable contacts with large corporations, mergers or secret organizations. There may be offsetting profitable and friendly correspondence. But sham petty quarrels and friction in the domestic realm

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of important or disturbing events, with possible friction or loss of employment, unless methods of compromise, diplomacy or strategem be employed The prospects of favorable arrangements with corporations, mergers or secret societies are encouraging and friendly correspondence may accomplish much. A child born on this day may be self-centered, ambitious, sensitive to criticism, and perhaps disposed to attain its ends by intrigue, diplomacy, shrewdness or science.

They Want Freedom.

Credit for the best speech of last week belongs to Mrs. Ida Watkins, Kansas farm owner and wheat queen, who vigorously went on record as wanting "to kick the devil out the farm board." Addressing a group of grain farmers she is quoted as having replied to a question of where she would draw the line in cooperative marketing: "I draw the line on the doggone, damnable government interference with our affairs and in our business."

She predicted that if the farm board stayed with wheat farmers much longer they would be through producing. "Any pegging of prices they have done has thrown us into bankruptcy," she cried, "and we taxpayers are paying for the fool experiment." In closing, she made it clear that what the farmers want most is to be let alone. They want freedom from legislation. Mrs. Watkins claims that she is expressing the opinion of a majority of American farmers.

This is a sad ending to a sad undertaking. To help farmers politicians have set aside all rules and gone the limit. They have organized what was formerly a powerful farm bloc. They have utilized political means for getting what they wanted while millions of Americans refrained from comment because they were thoroughly convinced that farmers needed and wanted help.

Money has been sacrificed to the good cause in million-dollar lots. Votes have been gathered in partial payment for service rendered deserving citizens situated on the soil. Party platforms haven't been complete without rugged planks looking after the welfare and future prosperity of that great class with hearts and hands married to the land. Idealists have thrilled to the thought of a wealthy country's assiduous concern for those who fed it.

Now, when the money has been spent, votes counted and the last echoes of the oratory have died away the farmers themselves, killed by kindness rise up to declare that they are sick and tired of it. Aren't we all?

Whitewashed.

The courage and vigor of Mayor Walker's long-awaited reply to charges of malfeasance brought against him by Judge Seabury and others compel admiration. There is nothing of the alley-skulking politician about the head of New York's government. Guilty or not guilty he puts up a good front.

It goes without saying that millions of Americans believe he is guilty. Where there is smoke, they reason, there must be fire. Regardless of any action Governor Roosevelt may take now that he has heard both sides of the case, there will be widespread conviction that the mayor is "getting away" with something.

In his answer to the charges he has raised an interesting point concerning the judgment of the electorate. He points with pardonable pride to his overwhelming majority in the last election. He argues that the charges against him deal, for the most part, with actions committed before the election. He claims that the decision of the people is more important than the suspicion of the head of an investigating committee.

Adherence to this principle is, of course, impossible. No public official able to command a majority vote could be removed from office if he were to be granted complete protection behind a barricade of votes. Sad to say, the people are not always right; frequently they are wrong. In the interest of good government they must be forced, occasionally, to recognize their mistakes.

Mayor Walker will continue to serve New York. In all probability, despite doubtful passages in his record, Governor Roosevelt, for political reasons, if no others, will hold a public hearing, from which Mr. Walker will emerge unharmed. The first coat of whitewash which he has applied to himself will be augmented with a second coat brushed on under official supervision.

This does not mean that a guilty man will be unjustly released from responsibility for his guilt, but that a man under suspicion will be released for insufficient evidence. Most Americans will continue to believe that he is "getting away with it," but what they think won't matter to Mayor Walker and Tammany hall. Politicians can't afford to be sensitive.

Trial Suspended.

Few will remember and fewer will care about a certain clause in that interesting document, the Treaty of Versailles, which places William II of Hohenzollern on trial for committing acts in violation of the laws and customs of war. However, this short of the treaty might be encouraged to walk it, as is possible, there were to be a restoration of the monarchy in Germany.

The former kaiser escaped trial for the misdeeds charged against him. The Netherlands flatly refused to surrender him and the matter was dropped. Neither did the Allies demand the surrender of the former crown prince, if indeed, they ever had any intention of so doing. Hate cools as quickly as affection. That the former Allies should stick to the letter of the Versailles treaty seems now as foolish as that Americans should continue to hate Germans because propagandists in the second decade of the century succeeded in convincing a large portion of the world's population that the Germans were monsters in human form.

The preposterousness of trying a human being for violating the laws of war was demonstrated in a small way by mock trials of 12 Germans prosecuted by their countrymen at the command of the Allies, in 1921. Six were found guilty, were given lenient sentences and pardoned soon after. War itself is the offense against society. Regardless of the attempt to make it subject to artificial law, the rule of thumb for the guidance of conduct is, and always has been, that everything is fair when men set out to kill one another.

Treaties are turned into scraps of paper as readily when German troops want to march across Belgium as they are when Japanese troops want to intimidate the Chinese. The world makes no progress in its attempt to make international conflict subject to rules. War is destruction - destruction of everything. The gentle old man at Doorn is vastly different from the hated Kaiser who walked in rivers of blood in 1917, but they are the same person.

Another Old Custom.

Betting is not a harmless activity, but it is undoubtedly a firmly established one. Like its better known relation, the consumption of intoxicating beverages, people have been experimenting with it from the beginning of time. Also like this troublesome relation, it is not squelched by the passage of laws against it.

Ohio has dealt with betting in a curious manner—one hand closed and one hand open. Legally, it is committed to a policy of stamping it out wherever and whenever it appears. Actually, it goes right on betting. Men take the oath of office and conveniently forget that they have sworn to eradicate betting. They justify themselves by what they know of public opinion.

The people of this state, with the usual exceptions, are not opposed to betting carried on in an honest and orderly manner. From the lack of support given sporadic attempts to stamp it out it is evident that a majority of them believe that the statute forbidding it is unenforceable. By failing to remove the statute, or to liberalize it to conform with their conception of what should be permitted, they lend themselves to a flagrant piece of social hypocrisy, productive of no end of confusion.

The issue is perennial. Interest in it wakes and wanes as trouble over the enforcement of the ban wakes and wanes. Currently, it is being pointed out by those who are disgusted with shilly-shallying and hypocrisy that Indiana is trying to get its feet on the ground with a bill legalizing betting at race tracks and authorizing the state to collect revenue from this source. Ohio can not decide too soon to get square with itself on this matter.

Property Is Cheap

The Los Angeles man who boasted that no robber could scare him into raising his hands and shutting his mouth died with his self-respect and a slug from a jewelry store holdup man's revolver in his back. He had the bad luck to speak his refusal to a killer.

The hoodlums have done their work well. Their victims, when they do fight back, are subdued quickly—and often permanently. Robbers can't afford to have it known that they aren't willing to fight it out to the death. It would be bad for business.

Much is made of the contrast between the old-fashioned willingness to fight it out with a thief and modern willingness to yield. It is repeated often that something has happened to the well-known courage of individual Americans.

The explanation probably lies in another direction - the relative value of property. The settler fighting off an attack by the Indians was willing to go the limit to protect his handful of possessions. The Indians, in turn, realizing what they were up against, gave no quarter and expected none. There was, of course, some slight confusion as to which were the robbers and which the victims in this case, but the Indians were a minority.

Modern hoodlums are easily as bad as the Indians at their worst; they probably shade them a little. They are desirous, however, of keeping robbery on a civilized basis, so to speak. They try to keep murder out of their work, depending on the intelligent discernment of their victims to help them. Property is too cheap to be defended with life, particularly when its defenders are unarmed.

Daily Guide to Health
BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Look Out for Strychnine Poisoning.

One of the most frequent causes of accidental death in children is strychnine poisoning. In a recent editorial in the Journal of the Medical Association, statistics covering these poisonings state that strychnine was responsible for about one-third of the poison deaths in children under five years of age. This is a startling fact.

You will wonder how the child manages to obtain this deadly poison. Unfortunately, strychnine is found in many chocolate and sugar-coated pills sold as "laxative" or "tonic" pills. Though each pill contains but a tiny quantity of strychnine, many pills taken at one time may prove fatal.

The child, attracted by the chocolate or sugar coating, will eat quantities of the pills believing them to be candy.

Such things should never be left around the house. The child, too young to read or understand the label on the bottle, should not be exposed to this danger.

The unfortunate victim of this variety of poisoning requires immediate and accurate medical attention. While waiting for the doctor to arrive, the patient should be placed in bed. He also should be calmed and reassured, because excitement and apprehension are dangerous in strychnine poisoning. As soon as the doctor arrives, the stomach must be washed out with a stomach pump and the necessary antidotes given.

In neglected or overlooked cases of strychnine poisoning, its victim is seized with severe convulsions. There is great difficulty in breathing, and unless immediate relief is obtained the condition may be fatal.

Recently these cases have been successfully treated by the intravenous injection of a "barbiturate" preparation, but of course this treatment can be given only by a physician.

In all cases of strychnine poisoning, hospital care should be given wherever possible. At the hospital, facilities for treating poisoning are more complete than at home.

I am glad to say that the American Medical Association and other bodies are urging that pills containing strychnine should not be manufactured. The drug is dangerous and should not be included in laxative pills and other remedies.

Until the sale of these pills is stopped, as it should be, I advise great care in the use of any medicine containing strychnine. To prevent accidents, any such medicine should be kept beyond the reach of children.

Comment of the Press

PRODUCT OF THE MOUNTAINS.

Four times convicted of murder, eight years a prisoner and later a congressman for four years, Caleb Powers had tasted both the bitterness and the sweetness of life. His death now at 64 takes from Kentucky a citizen who was first page news 30 years ago. Powers came from fighting stock but died from natural causes on a hospital bed.

The "American Dreyfus" Powers had been called. His case did in fact suggest that of the famous Frenchman who, condemned as a traitor, returned to receive the plaudits of the republic.

Rough frontier politics produced Powers and furnished the background of his stirring career. A Republican from the eastern mountains of Kentucky, Powers was elected secretary of state in 1899; on the face of the returns also, William S. Taylor, Republican, was chosen governor. They took office at the beginning of 1900.

The legislature was Democratic and William Goebel, whom Taylor had apparently defeated, filed a contest. It was obvious that Taylor could be thrown out. But before the decision was reached Goebel was killed on the statehouse grounds by a shot fired from a window of Powers' office.

Goebel was declared elected, Taylor fled for safety to Indiana and Powers was brought to trial for complicity in the murder. It was testified at his successive trials that Powers had brought companies of mountaineers to the capital and had himself fled from Frankfort in disguise. He was finally sent to the penitentiary for life.

Not till 1908 did Kentucky elect a governor willing to pardon Powers and Powers' "martyrdom" was a theme for political orators the country over. Once out of prison, Powers devoted himself to the task of vindication. He was elected to congress in 1910 and reelected two years later. He was a figure at Washington, largely because of the tragic story of his career.

Powers was a product of a frontier that seemed staunch primitive men 50 years ago. His experience and his "vindication" belong to the folklore of the border country.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

JOHN POPEJOY.

Fayette county has had many judges of high character, but it is doubtful if any surpassed John Popejoy, one of the early justices of peace in the county.

Judge Popejoy kept his own records and his docket was written on fragments of paper. His file case was a sidewall of his cabin, in convenient cracks of which they were deposited.

It was said he made his own ink from the juice of walnut hulls. His quill pen was of course home made. Justice, harmony, peace and good will were the objectives of Judge Popejoy.

He rarely charged costs and when he did he usually took it in cider or beer which he served immediately to the parties and their witnesses, detained for that purpose in order that the incident might be closed in peace, good will and brotherly feeling.

For all these things the name of John Popejoy is preserved in the rude records of Fayette county though he has been in his grave more than 100 years.

New York Day by Day
BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Aug. 1—Diary of a modern Pepys: Betimes and a bid from Christopher Morley to lunch on lamb done in provincial flavor, but exacting a promise not to disclose the cafe's address. Letters, too, from John Horgan, Vera Michelena, Elissa Landi and C. G. Norris. So for a brief slog along the Rialto.

Home and a suave optimist interrupted my typing, trying to hawk shares in a chain of proposed beer gardens. Later to a tea, meeting up with Francis H. Sisson, Edward Doherty and Isabel Leighton. And my wife licking me off, no end, for my shirting of flamboyant coloring at so sedate a gathering.

Dinner at "Pinky" Moore's, and Frank Buck, heavy thewed animal catcher, joined us awhile. Also Lew Cody. Thence to a play, greeting Corey Ford, Frank Sullivan, S. Jay Kaufman, George White and May Christie. So, walking across 45th street, besieged by a dozen who, having fluffed life, through no fault of their own, asked an alm.

Among New York's "best dressed men" are Mayor Walker, Phil Plant, Earl Benham, Otto Kahn, Russel Patterson and William Caxton. Since Maxine Elliot's day, but one woman has worn the title "best dressed." She was Gulia P. Morosini, daughter of the original partner of Jay Gould. She lived in the headlined "House of Mystery" in the Bronx. Many beaux sought her. Her wardrobe cost $25,000 yearly. In the end, Miss Morosini married a mounted cop, who saved her life in a runaway. Incidentally, Irene Castle could wear clothes better than any other person of her generation. Natasha Rambova was a close second.

A downtown errand took me past the old World building last night. About it is a gloom suggesting that of those abandoned feudal castles along the Rhine. Until the World presses stopped, the Pulitzer building, like a great ship ablaze with light, offered a fierce gust of bravado. Newsboys shouted lustily there and there was a hurry-burry of mass hysteria about passing crowds. The customers of Dr. Perry's seemed blustering men, tingling for adventure. In place of that full-blooded vigour, there is today only a sprinkling of sauer-eyed sandwich men and whispering moochers looking a trifle whipped by the amazing succession of hoop-de-doo we call life.

Most out-of-town newspapermen hungering for the terrene taste of Park Row sought posts on the Morning World, despite it was the most rigidly disciplined editorial shop in town. Oddly enough, its stiff discipline had one chink in its armor. The World rarely discharged for drinking dereliction. They were often fined and suspended without pay during such lapses, but upon a return to sobriety their jobs were waiting.

I know but two persons who persistently return borrowed books. As a generous lender, I imagine I have 5,000 volumes on victorious picnics. All this is a prelude to a borrower showing up with what he thought was a borrowed book today. Unless he reads it here, he will never know the tome he returned was a Christmas gift from me, three years ago. Oddly, it was the only book he ever returned.

BE STILL, SAD HEARTS!

The world seems to be divided into two classes of people. Those who tremble for fear that this will soon become "a woman's world," that women will become Amazons and that man will be the downtrodden sex. And those who are beginning to wonder, cynically, if all the struggles of the feminists to free women from bondage, have been wasted.

Personally, I agree with Mrs. Parrot that thus far at least, "woman's freedom has been God's greatest gift to man," and has not done so much for women.

No pessimist need fear that woman will ever become the dominant sex, so long as the return to corsets is regarded as a serious possibility.

Any sex that will permit itself to be ruled by a few French dressmakers, and will let its vital organs be squeezed back into whalebone and steel, will never be independent—much less hold the whiphand in this world.

Any sex that, once having enjoyed the freedom and comfort of short hair, short skirts and straight lines, will deliberately return to the discomfort of long hair and the imprisonment of trailing skirts and tight corsets, will never walk very far in the path of progress.

No sex that will sit for four hours under a dryer in a beauty-shop, having its "permanent" waved and its fingernails shellacked, or spend a hot summer afternoon in the steam-room of a Turkish bath "reducing" its hips, will ever have much time left to concentrate on bossing the State.

No sex that will risk pain and disfigurement, having its hair peeled, its eyebrows tweezed and its chin lifted will ever dominate the other sex, who regards itself as a Thing of Beauty, just as God made it.

No sex that risks its neck and gives itself a backache, teetering around on four-inch spiked heels is ever going to put its foot on the neck of the other sex.

No sex that swathes its hands and arms in long, hot kid gloves on a melting summer evening and freezes its legs in open-mesh stockings and satin pumps in a January blizzard, will ever wield the scepter; it will be too busy warding off rheumatism.

And no sex that regards a husband merely as a stop-gap, between school and matrimony, or a life between heavydates will ever sit in the White House.

So, be still, sad hearts, and cease repining! Heaven knows I should shudder to see my own fair sex become Amazons. It would be a sorry spectacle to see these strong women" coddling, bullying and protecting frail, delicate men. But, be of good cheer! It will never happen, so long as there is a pair of dashiron corsets to be had anywhere in the world, except in a museum, with the other relics of barbarism!—Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Daily Talk to Parents
BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

MOTHER'S EXAMPLE.

Betty throws a tantrum if she is made to wear a play suit instead of a dainty dress. She wants her hair kept curled and does not play roughly lest her frock become soiled or wrinkled.

Surreptitiously she applies powder from her mother's dressing table and frequently smells suspiciously of her most expensive perfume.

But it was not until recently when she demanded that mother "fix" her lips, that it was evident that Betty's interest in "prettification" had gone a bit too far.

Yet how can Betty help it? Every wholesome little girl wants to be like her mother. And all her life Betty has seen her mother spend long minutes before the dressing table extremely routine, powdering and perfuming herself.

She has sat with her for hours at the hairdresser's watching the long process of shampoo, wave, massage and manicure. She has heard her mother discuss with absorption her complexion, the state of her hair, her new clothes.

She has heard many a violent denunciation of a shop that failed to deliver a gown on time for some special occasion. She has seen her mother in tears over a dress the cleaner had ruined.

Is it any wonder that Betty yearns to be beautifully dressed and curled, rouged and scented? Her efforts to be grown up quite naturally center about those things as the most striking features of that much desired state.

Little girls should not be so much aware of the time and effort and importance which their mothers may see fit to give to their appearance.

The attention which they lavish upon it should be given as far as possible when the child is not present.

SOFTBALL TOURNEY SEES DAZZLING PLAY

No-Hit Game Included in Six Brilliant Contests at Lincoln Park Sunday.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

With as dazzling a display of softball as has ever been seen on a Marion diamond, the second annual Ohio state championship softball tournament got under way at Lincoln park yesterday afternoon. Twelve teams of the 20-team field crossed bats in a six-game schedule. The other eight teams will swing into action next Sunday and four teams which played yesterday will return for a pair of second round games.

The Montgomery Ward team of Marion opened the tourney by squeezing out a 1-0 victory over the Pharis Tire & Rubber company of Newark behind the stellar flinging of Frances Robbins. Robbins gave the invading team only two hits in what was probably his best pitching job of the season. The Marion team got only four hits but bunched three of them in the sixth frame for the single run.

Mansfield and Lancaster put on a battle royal the second game with Mansfield triumphing by a 2-0 count. Speed Gettles held the losers to two hits. Porch, Mansfield second sacker, won the game for Mansfield by smashing a pair of home runs for the only two scores of the game. Gettles struck out 15, Diley, Lancaster twirler, whiffed 11 and pitched a game good enough to win most any other time.

Marion Nine Loses

The Smith Clothiers of Marion was handed a severe drubbing in the third game, losing to the High-Frank garage of Columbus 12-0. Marion team blew up completely under the tournament pressure, committing 10 errors and never being in the running. Elmo Becker gave the Marion club only two hits.

The Columbus Safety Cabs pulled a surprise move in the next game by sending Doc Stith, Linden Gopher star of last season, to the mound. Doc did not bear down particularly here at any time but still managed to set the Prager Clothiers of Findlay down with one hit while his mates were pounding out seven good for three runs. The one hit off Stith was a home run. The Columbus club is an all-star team and looms as one of the strongest in the tournament.

Lorain turned loose one of the fastest clubs ever seen in Marion against the Fountain Drugs of Columbus and chalked up a 9-0 victory as Dobras hurled a no-hit game. The Lorain team clubbed everything Hysel of Columbus had to offer and played brilliantly afield. Dobras, Lorain flinger, is the first pitcher who has been able to match speed with Doc Stith. His fast ball fairly blazed through. Sixteen Columbus batters struck out and only one reached first. He got there on a walk. The Lorain club also looms as a distinct threat for tourney honors.

Marion Paint Wins

The Marion Paint company waited until the final inning to snatch a 3-1 victory from the McGowan Arcades of Tiffin. John Marshall smacked a homer in the seventh with one on to provide the winning margin. Dale Schwaderer gave Tiffin only one hit while Marion collected four.

SAINTS DROP TWO

Hawn Beat Tall-Enders Twice; Columbus Slips Notch.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 1—St. Paul's Apostles might be able to get somewhere in their struggle to climb out of eighth place in the American Association if it were not for the Kansas City Blues.

Yesterday the Blues made a Sunday doubleheader the occasion for smacking the Saints for the tenth straight time, and one of the defeats was another one of those exasperating one-run affairs. The scores were 9 to 8, and 7 to 5.

Indianapolis broke its tie with Columbus for second place by winning the Red Birds, 4 to 3, in the first game and playing to a 4-all standoff in the second, called in compliance with the 6 o'clock Sunday closing law.

ARLINGTON CLOSES RACE MEET IN DEBT

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 1—Arlington park spent $700,000 this season trying to beat the races, but wound up loser, just like the horse players.

That was the admission today of John D. Hertz, chairman of the executive committee of the fashionable Jockey club. The loss will be slight, he said, but whatever deficit it will be amply made up by the creation of good will among patrons of the sport.

The high purse policy was maintained to the last, closing with the $34,000 Arlington futurity, won by Lady's Man. It was the richest juvenile purse ever offered in the west.

Arlington gave away in purses the staggering total of almost seventeen million dollars.

FISHER, BOZINIS TOP MAT SHOW TONIGHT

Fast, Hard Battle Likely as "Rasslers" Meet in Open Air Battle.

Since Midget Fisher, that rather abnormally developed "rassler," made his first appearance in a Marion arena some weeks ago, both he and grunt and groan enthusiasts of Marion have been asking that he be returned in a main go bout with some really tough opponent. Tonight these same fans will get their wishes completely fulfilled.

Midget will meet Nick Bozinis tonight in the two-hour main go battle of the regular weekly mat program at the outdoor arena on Uncapher avenue. Nick Bozinis, as though anyone needed to be told, is tough enough to furnish Fisher all the opposition he needs, possibly a little bit more. Bozinis has wrestled here many times and his slam bang tactics have always pleased the crowd. Fisher wanted opposition. The fans wanted a good match. Everyone ought to be satisfied after tonight's match is completed.

Larry Straub of Columbus and Ernie Nolan of Miami, Fla., will clash in the semi-final tonight, going 45 minutes with two falls to win.

The first preliminary will commence at 8:30 p. m.

LARGEST CROWD IN BASEBALL HISTORY AT DEDICATION TILT

Grove Blanks Tribe with Four-Hit Twirling; Harder Allows Six.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 1—Cleveland's $2,500,000 municipal stadium was dedicated to American league baseball yesterday in full conformity to custom—which means that the home team lost.

Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics set down the Indians 1 to 0, but even to the Tribe the occasion was one of the greatest in baseball history.

There were 80,184 fans from all parts of Ohio and western Pennsylvania in the stands, probably the largest crowd that ever attended a baseball game.

Although official records showed an attendance of 85,285 at a double-header between the Yankees and the Athletics in New York, Sept. 6, 1925, the actual attendance at the game as given by President William Harridge of the league was 80,045.

Robert Moses Grove, the Athletics' ace southpaw, pitching shut-out ball, held the Indians to four scattered hits, while young Mel Harder turned in a five-hit performance in the eight innings he worked for the Tribesmen. Oral Hildebrand gave an additional hit in the ninth.

To the Cleveland fans, the game was a heart-breaker, for it left the Tribe in third place, 1½ games behind the Athletics, and 9½ games behind the league-leading Yankees, a margin so wide that this late in the season, only a baseball miracle could offset it.

Governor George White threw the first ball, and Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, posing as an umpire, called it a strike.

FRANCE BEATS U. S. IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

Yanks Fail To Recapture Trophy by Margin of Three to Two.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Aug. 1—One again the United States team has failed by the barest margin—three matches to two—to wrest the Davis cup from France.

They were beaten when Jean Borotra came back from a tennis grave of his own choosing to play some of his most inspired tennis, but not until Ellsworth Vines, Jr., Uncle Sam's greatest hope, had met and subdued France's idol, Henri Cochet.

The three-day series concluded officially when Borotra triumphed over Wilmer Allison, 1-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5, in the first of yesterday's concluding singles.

Barely had the throng carried Borotra from the court, however, when its ardor was dampened by the sight of Cochet being defeated. It was his first beating in Davis cup play in six years.

The Vines who turned back Cochet, the world's first ranking player, bore but slight resemblance to the Vines who was beaten in the opening singles match on Friday by Borotra. Those who saw him agreed Uncle Sam would have little difficulty taking the big trophy a year hence.

DARNELL IN FORM

Strikes Out 14 as Morral Whips Hyatts, 2-0.

Bill Darnell displayed rare form yesterday as Morral grabbed a 2-0 diamond battle from Hyatts in a Heart of Ohio league game. The right hander flipped the third strike past 14 men and gave up only one hit. His mates played errorless ball behind him and the losers never threatened seriously.

Larry Edgington smacked a home run to aid the Morral cause.

Batteries and score by innings:

Hyatts	000	000	000	—	0	1	3
Morral	001	001	00x	—	2	3	0

Hyatts, Johnson, Hardin and Martin; Morral, Darnell and Edgington.

CAREY BEATEN BY COLUMBUS NINE, 7-6

The Columbus Travelers shattered the winning streak of Don Donelson's Carey Semi-pros yesterday at Carey, winning by a 7-6 score. Harve Porter proved no puzzle to the capital city colored batters and was hit hard. The hits Carey hits were kept well scattered.

The Travelers will play a return game on Sept. 4.

Batteries and score by innings:

Columbus	300	200	020	—	7	10	3
Carey	100	000	000	—	6	9	1

Columbus, Hollan and Jenkins; Carey, Porter, Walters and Gates.

MERCHANT-GREYS IN VICTORY SUNDAY

The Shaker Merchant Greys, colored baseball team, fought an eight inning battle yesterday to win from Oakland, by a 7-6 score. The Shaker brothers broke up the last game in the ninth when W. Adams walked and Harry Adams [illegible] a homer. Shaker [illegible] this game.

RUTHIAN WAR CLUB AIDS YANKS SCORE WIN OVER DETROIT

New York Regains Old Confidence as Bambino Returns to Lineup.

By The Associated Press

For all Anyone can prove to the contrary, Babe Ruth still is the Yankees, and the Yankees still are Ruth.

The big fellow, up from a bed of pain, has been back in the line-up only four days, and has transformed the leaders from a sickly, badly scared club to the old confident, all-conquering team.

The Bambino, still limping slightly, was rushed back into the pennant fight last Thursday after the Yanks had dropped three straight. Since then he has been to the plate 12 times, collected 10 hits for an average of .769; driven in 14 runs and scored five times. The Yankees won three of the four games.

Included in the Babe's four-day collecting were four home runs, running his total to 30. He smacked No. 30 yesterday along with a pair of singles to drive in five runs to help smirch Detroit, 12 to 8.

The Cleveland Indians, making their debut in their new stadium before 80,284 fans, found the Athletics ungracious guests. Lefty Grove limited the Indians to four hits. In the eighth inning Mickey Cochrane clicked a single that won the game, 1 to 0.

Monte Weaver, Washington's rookie star, scored his 17th victory at Chicago's expense, 3 to 2, and the St. Louis Browns took two from Boston, 13 to 2, and 7 to 3.

In the National league, the Pirates observed an off-day at Philadelphia and the Chicago Cubs split with Brooklyn, taking the first, 6 to 3, but the Dodgers rallied in the seventh to win the nightcap, 8 to 4.

The Boston Braves also divided with St. Louis, Paul Derringer blanking the Braves, 7 to 0, in the opener, and Boston slugging Dizzy Dean for a 7 to 2 decision in the second. Dean hit a homer.

Breaking a seven-game losing streak, the New York Giants tumbled Cincinnati twice, 4 to 3, and 4 to 1.
